OSGA Visitors: Policy and Procedure

Introduction

The Oxford School of Global Area Studies (OSGA) welcomes visitors primarily to conduct research activity that is aligned with the research agenda of the School and its academic research programmes. The visitor programme exists to facilitate links and collaboration with other universities, governments and organisations, both in the UK and overseas, and to allow academics and practitioners the opportunity to collaborate in research with our School’s academics. Visitors, who must be nominated and hosted by a permanent academic member of staff at the School, may be associated with the School for different purposes and for varying periods. Academic hosts must be mindful of space constraints and resource implications before accepting visitors and are responsible for their visitor for the duration of the visit. All visitor applications must be reviewed and approved by the relevant Programme management committee in advance of any visit.

During their stay, visitors have the opportunity to contribute to a wide range of School activities. This may involve collaborating on research activity, organising an event, authoring or co-authoring a research paper or working paper, developing a research proposal for external funding, or assisting a research centre in developing networks. In addition to the support of an academic host, visitors will be provided with:

- a University card
- University email
- access to library facilities
- some hosting programmes may be able to provide a workspace

Visitors are welcome to attend permitted seminars and guest speaker events throughout the University (we regret, however, that visitors cannot attend course-specific classes).

This document sets out our arrangements for bringing visitors to the School, and defines the types of visitors we host and the charges and services applicable to each category of visitor.

Objectives

- To offer external visitors the opportunity to collaborate with colleagues in OSGA, with a view to furthering and publishing their research.
- To develop and promote research links with other Universities, institutions and researchers in the UK and overseas.
- To provide the School’s staff and research students with the opportunity to collaborate with and learn from academics from outside Oxford.
- To operate a transparent, efficient and secure process for managing visitor applications and access to services.
- To process applications and manage visits in compliance with UK Home Office regulations and University policy.
- To provide services appropriate to each type of visitor for the duration of their visit.
Visitor types

Please note that the following list of criteria is not exhaustive and visitors who require a visa or entry clearance letter from the School must meet a number of further criteria to qualify as a visitor. For further information on this, please contact the School’s Human Resources Team at: visitors@area.ox.ac.uk

TYPE A: Academic visitor: Collaborator
- Employed by a recognized higher education institution, visiting OSGA for collaborative purposes
- Visiting OSGA to share knowledge/experience with academics at the School
- May be charged bench fees

TYPE B: Academic visitor: Non-Collaborator
- Employed by a recognized higher education institution, visiting OSGA to further their own private research
- On paid leave from their employing institution to conduct own research.
- Will be charged bench fees to cover the costs of providing services

TYPE C: Practitioner visitor: Collaborator
- Professionals conducting research related activity (usually employed and on paid leave by an academic or non-academic institution)
- Contribute to, and collaborate on, research activities with OSGA academic and research staff
- Will be charged bench fees to cover the costs of providing services

Academic Host

Each visitor has an academic host, a permanent member of academic staff at the School, who will supply a letter/statement of support as part of the visitor application; provide advice on collaborations, events and other research activities; and introduce the visitor to relevant members of staff and other Oxford University contacts.

Academic visitors are responsible for managing their own research activities and work agenda whilst in Oxford and are expected to work independently. The visitor’s Academic Host will offer advice and support wherever possible, although this may in practice be limited due to the host’s term-time and other commitments.

It is recommended that the prospective applicant consider who in the School might be able to offer appropriate support and contact them for advice before applying to the Academic Visitor Programme.
Duration

A visit to OSGA can be for a minimum of one month and a maximum of one year. The visit should commence on a working day in the U.K. agreed in advance with the Academic Host.

The timing of visits is an important consideration as the activity within the School and University changes across the academic year. Applicants are advised to time their visit to coincide with one of Oxford’s three terms because colleagues are more likely to be available during these times, and visitors who wish to participate in a full calendar of events and other similar research activities should aim to visit in Michaelmas or Hilary terms. Conversely, if looking for a quieter working environment, visitors may prefer to visit in Trinity term or the long summer vacation.

Visas and work permits

These arrangements are subject to change to reflect prevailing Home Office regulations.

Visitors to the University from outside the U.K. who do not already have the right to visit the U.K. must ensure they have the appropriate visa for the activities they are going to undertake. The necessary visa must be obtained before coming to the University and we are required to ask all visitors to OSGA to confirm their immigration status via a visa and passport check with HR. For more information about visas, please contact the School’s Human Resources Team: visitors@area.ox.ac.uk

Visitor Title

Visitors will normally be given the title of ‘Visiting Research Fellow’ or ‘Visiting Practitioner Fellow’ and will use this title in all references to their association with the School and the University of Oxford.
